

Steinman Professorship in Food Science and Technology – Lisa McKee

Dr. Lisa McKee is holder of the Martin Steinman Endowed Professorship. McKee has used the funds from the endowment to purchase equipment needed by the department, and to fund assistantships for graduate and undergraduate students.

"The endowment has made possible a variety of student projects as well as laboratory assignments that would not have been possible otherwise," she says.

The College of Agriculture and Home Economics seeks to establish new endowed chairs in every department.

Opportunities exist in all areas of the college for additional named professorships, enhancing our college as a whole.

Invest in our college today.